

CHAPTER V

CONCLUSION AND SUGGESTION

The study investigated teachers' way in developing lesson plan based on 2013 curriculum and the problem deal with it. Following are the descriptions of the conclusion and the recommendation.

A. Conclusion

From the discussion in the previous chapter, there were several conclusions that can be drawn.

1. The study found out that teachers developed lesson plan by adopting from internet and then revised it based on their necessities. Most of teachers actually had known the essential of 2013 curriculum and its lesson plan development theoretically, but they had lack of understanding how to develop scientific approach in learning activity, formulating indicator, and technique of assessment in lesson plan based on 2013 curriculum.
2. It is related to the problems faced by teachers in developing lesson plan. The problems faced mainly in lack of information's that teacher had in developing lesson plan based on 2013 curriculum. These problems could be coming from the educational board that had not fully spread the information to all teachers. Besides, school was kind out of date in getting information especially to the new policy applied by government. In term of intrinsic factor from teachers, the problems also came from non-technical factor such as the culture of the teachers in which they had nothing to do except teaching to the students. Actually they knew the principal guidelines in developing lesson plan but it was hard for them to write it down. Usually, to complete administrative they just adopted from internet.

B. Recommendation

This section describes some points as the recommendations that are worth doing:

1. It will be better for government to socialize the policy first to all the parties related in education such as school and teachers, which means the government is not in a hurry to legalize the new policy. This socialization can be started in the form of seminar, workshop or training.

2. It is only after information is understood by the teacher in school. The government can start to apply new policy.
3. The teachers themselves need to have sincere intention in improving their quality in teaching. This lesson plan is not only as the requirement to get certification but also as the media to prove that teacher can be one of the professional occupations.

So, good cooperation between related parties such as educational board, school and teachers is needed to make new policy of the new curriculum, 2013 curriculum and its lesson plan properly applicable in the targeted field. So, the quality of education can increase to be better in future.